LORSCH Things to do

Lorsch Abbey workshops

Lorsch Museum's educational service, which has been recognised with an award from UNESCO Germany, takes both children and adults on a journey into the Early Middle Ages. These workshops explain the skills and techniques of tradesmen, healers, candle makers, tile makers, herb gardeners, goldsmiths and scribes during this period, and also reveal how they overcame the trials and tribulations that they faced. We also offer a special program of events during the school holidays, some of which run over a number of days. And if you would like to take a trip 1200 years back in time with your friends on your birthday, please inquire at Lorsch Abbey. The medieval cookery courses come particularly highly recommended!

LORSCHThe town

Lorsch – the only town in south Hessen to have a UNESCO World Heritage Site within its walls. Lorsch is the gateway to ‘Germany’s spring garden’ the Bergstrasse mountain route. It is a Carolingian town situated in Nibelungenland, on the banks of the small river Weschnitz.

Today, Lorsch is a modern community with a bustling town centre, full of half-timbered houses. Between the world-famous Königshalle (King’s Hall) and the Baroque town hall, visitors will find the level of service and facilities associated with a successful medium-sized town, as well as the warm intimacy of a charming village.

The Königshalle (King’s Hall) is adjacent to the museum centre. In addition to providing detailed information on the abbey’s history, the centre also houses one of Europe’s largest tobacco museums. For more than three centuries, the cultivation of this giant, six-foot-tall plant played a key role in the life of Lorsch. The world’s largest fully functional pipe and an enormous collection of cigar bands have earned the museum a dual listing in the Guinness Book of Records. The historic tobacco curing shed, which is located nearby, has housed a museum of tobacco cultivation since 2017.

The exhibits in the Fire Brigade Museum tell about the history of fire-fighting and technical progress that has been made to deal with catastrophes. And since 2001, Lorsch has also been home to the Kurfalz Library – a scientific institution of national interest.

‘Beim StadtLesen’

The St. John’s Festival | Nature research at UNESCO Geo-Naturpark

Lorsch is also home to the UNESCO Geo-Naturepark Bergstraße-Odenwald as well as the district Volkshochschule community college. Town festivals, club activities and cultural projects also form part of the rich tapestry of cultural life here, as does an institution that pulls people in from far and wide: the Sapperlot Theatre.

Located at the intersect of two metropolitan regions, Lorsch is situated between two motorways, close to a major railway line and a short distance from Frankfurt Airport. The town has also gained a reputation as a bicycle friendly city, with national cycle routes crossing in this region where the German states of Hessen, Baden-Württemberg and Rhineland-Palatinate meet.

Extensive and well-maintained sports and public recreational facilities such as the Waldschwimmbad swimming pool make Lorsch a perfect destination for visitors wanting a relaxing break away from it all.

A warm welcome to all our visitors!

LORSCHProjects

Lorsch has its roots in the Carolingian Benedictine Abbey, a site of cultural importance that continues to shape the town’s identity, that still shapes the town’s identity today. This is the reason behind a range of projects that link the past with the present. One of these projects involves tobacco, a commodity that explains the town’s economic boom in the 18th century.

The Bee and Poetry Project
This project was instigated due to the importance of the Lorscher Bienensegen (Bee Blessing), one of the most important records of the German language dating from the 10th century. Visitors, local residents and people of all ages will have the chance to get involved in the project, which features readings, festivals, special events and products all related to bees and poetry.

The Peony Project
The Lorsch Pharmacopoeia compiled in the 8th century declares the prolifically flowering peony a plant with medicinal properties. We have dedicated a public Peony Garden to this flower in the former abbey dune embankment in front of the Protestant church and Peony Days are held every year at the Spring Market.

The Tobacco Project
For nearly three hundred years, giant tobacco plants determined the course of the year in Lorsch. In 2013, a special field to teach people about tobacco brought this tradition back to life. The field is worked by local residents who are very proud to present their own flavoursome cigar!

LORSCHUNESCO World Heritage Site

Lorsch Abbey UNESCO World Heritage Site
From its earliest beginnings in 764 until its destruction in the Thirty Years War, Lorsch Abbey has experienced an exciting and chequered history. It owes its rapid upsurge in importance to a number of clever moves made by the Abbey’s directorate; relics of Saint Nazarius were venerated at an early date and the Benedictine Abbey was placed under the personal protection of the king. Manorial nobility, architectural history and the humanities are the three pillars that support the outstanding importance that Charlemagne’s former imperial abbey knows today.

Grounds of Lorsch Abbey, UNESCO World Heritage Site
Major works have extended and enlarged the UNESCO World Heritage Site, significantly improving the visitor experience. The Altenmünster Abbey beside River Weschnitz and the abbey site in the town centre are now connected by a 2.5 km circular path. Highlights include the monastery mound featuring the Königshalle (King’s Hall), the church fragment, the monastery wall and newly-landscaped herb garden. The Schaudepot Zehntscheune (Exhibition Depot Tithe Barn) and the museum centre also illustrate the architectural and intellectual importance of the site in history. The model of the Carolingian manor (Lauresham) is unique in Europe and brings the subject of manorial nobility in the Early Middle Ages vividly back to life.

LORSCH MONASTERY WORLD HERITAGE SITEDiscovery

The Monastery Grounds (UNESCO World Heritage Site)
It was here that the new monastery grounds were developed just a few years after the abbey was founded. As well as the three remaining buildings – the Königshalle (King’s Hall), fragments of the Basilica and the Abbey Wall – contemplative, minimalist landscaping magnificently reflects the architectural importance of the site.

Königshalle (King’s Hall) | UNESCO World Heritage Site
This is the architectural highlight of the UNESCO World Heritage Site. The delightful building with its colourful, world-famous sandstone facade is the best preserved building dating back to the Carolingian era north of the Alps.

Schaudepot Zehntscheune (Exhibition Depot Tithe Barn)
This former store for corn and crops is now an architectural gem, home to the finds that have been discovered during two hundred years of excavations in the Abbey grounds.

The Lorsch Pharmacopoeia Herb Garden
This garden is home to medicinal and healing plants that were listed in the Lorsch Pharmacopoeia (declared a UNESCO World Documentary Heritage in 2013), which marked the beginning of modern-day medicine in the western world.

MUZ Museum Centre
The museum centre comprises two separate parts, one of which deals with the intellectual significance of Lorsch Abbey, while the other houses one of the largest tobacco museums in Germany.

The Peony Garden
The public teaching and show garden is dedicated to this medicinal plant, which was listed in the Lorsch Pharmacopoeia and is still of importance today.

BIZ Visitor Information Centre
The museum’s educational service, complete with medieval kitchen, is located in the BIZ Visitor Centre. As well as housing the museum shop and ticket office, the BIZ is also the starting point for Lauresham guided tours.

Freilichtlabor Lauresham (Laboratory for Experimental Archaeology) - life in the Carolingian age

Freilichtlabor Lauresham (Laboratory for Experimental Archaeology)
What was life like for peasants and manorial families during Charlemagne’s time? The Carolingian manor at Lauresham was modelled on the basis of archaeological findings. Research is carried out in the fields of farming, animal husbandry and crafts. A guided tour shows many interesting things about manorial nobility during the Carolingian era.

Altenmünster Abbey (UNESCO World Heritage Site)
This is the original site of the abbey built in 764, which had to be relinquished at a very early stage due to a lack of space. Landscaping design now gives today’s visitors a good idea of what the site used to look like.

The Circular Cultural Trail
A circular trail connects the former Altenmünster Abbey and the Imperial Abbey. This trail is characterised by the juxtaposition of the surrounding natural and cultural landscapes.

Tobacco Curing Shed
An impressive testimony to the time of tobacco cultivation in Lorsch, this is the shed in which tobacco was previously hung up to cure.
